

ABSTRACT

A computing system that includes a client computer and a group of server computers is described. The group of server computers includes a server computer that can provide a program of instruction to the client computer. The program of instruction enables the client computer to select 5 images and to create a composite image from the selected images.

10080788.022002